

DR. AKHILESH KUMAR SINGH

Dr. Akhilesh Kumar Singh is working as Assistant Professor (Ayurveda) in Sanchi University of Buddhist-Indic Studies, Raisen, Madhya Pradesh, India. Dr. Singh is graduated in Ayurveda and completed his M.D. and Ph.D. in Kaya Chikitsa (Ayurveda). He has submitted his dissertation for M.D. on “To study the effect of Bibeetakadi Vatak in Kaphaj Pandu” in 2006, thesis for doctorate on “A Comparative Clinical Evaluation of Jalaukavachran (Leech Therapy) and Yoga Basti Karma in the Management of Vata-Rakta (Gouty Arthritis)” in 2011 and thesis for post-doc on “Prevalence of Kaphaj Pandu (Iron Deficiency Anemia) in Various Economic Strata and its Management with Social and Preventive Aspect of Ayurveda” in 2015.

Dr. Singh has more than ten years of academic, clinical and research experience including the most prestigious Senior Research Associateship/Pool Scientist from C.S.I.R., New Delhi. He has published more than thirty six research papers, presented more than nineteen research papers at International and National Conferences, delivered more than twenty academic talks/lectures including prestigious Academic Staff College, B.H.U. and so far successfully accomplished four research projects. Under the sponsorship of C.S.I.R., I.C.M.R. and I.C.H.R., he presented research papers in International Conferences held in Sancheong (South Korea), Colombo (Sri Lanka) and Kiel (Germany). He is registered member of various Professional Bodies including Bhartiya Chikitsa Parishad, M.C.I.M., Vishwa Ayurveda Parishad and C.C.I.M. He is the Project head of ongoing project entitled “Mapping of Traditional Healing Practices (With special reference to Tribal Healing in Madhya Pradesh)” and Key person for the establishment of Centre of Integrated Healing at Sanchi University of Buddhist-Indic Studies, Raisen, Madhya Pradesh. His areas of interest are Buddhist humanistic healing traditions, integrated model of healing and Mapping of Traditional healing practices.
