

DR. EDWARD YAP

Edward Yap Eng Ann, is a qualified and registered Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) physician in Singapore. In 2001, he graduated from Institute of Chinese Medical Studies in Singapore, and in 2009, he obtained a Master of Medicine in Orthopedics Traumatology of Chinese Medicine, from Guangxi Traditional Chinese Medical University, China.

He used to work in hospitals, nursing home and clinics for many years, and has been to countries like Sri Lanka, Myanmar, Indonesia, and India for volunteer treatments. He specializes in treating patients with musculoskeletal disorders, chronic pain, nervous system disorders, and internal medicine by using chinese herbs, acupuncture, moxibustion, cupping and manipulation.

He feels that volunteer treatment is not just a few days kind of “hit and run” treatment, as some chronic conditions need longer time to treat. As such, he left his job 2.5 years ago to become a “barefoot” travelling TCM physician. During this period of time, he has been to different parts of India and Myanmar to treat the local people and the monks respectively. He also teaches acupuncture to some Tibetan medicine students in India over the years, as well as inculcating health knowledge and preventive measures to the patients.

His mission in life is to reach out and share his acupuncture knowledge to as many people as possible, especially to those areas where acupuncture is still unknown or new to the local people.
